

Christophe Fox

CELEBRITY

Big internal gatherings (sales kickoffs, all-hands, client events, anniversaries) carry real cost and a real ask: the audience must leave more engaged with the company, the strategy and each other than when they arrived. Too many of these events default to a series of talking-head sessions that audiences forget within a week. The harder problem is designing a moment in the room that is genuinely memorable and still reinforces the message leadership wants to land.

Christophe Fox is a corporate mentalist, emcee and keynote speaker who designs interactive event experiences for Fortune 100 audiences, using mentalism and audience participation as the engagement mechanic.

Christophe Fox's 2026 Biography

Why organisations work with Christophe Fox

- Headline entertainment that doubles as a content vehicle. The mentalism set is built for a corporate room, with company branding, brief framing and a takeaway message that ties back to the event theme.
- Emcee craft for high-stakes internal events. Fox holds the room across a multi-session agenda, manages energy between speakers and reduces the load on internal hosts at sales kickoffs, anniversaries and client gatherings.
- A motivational keynote anchored in a personal arc. "Performing Under Pressure" uses Fox's stage-fright-to-stage transformation as the spine, paired with live demonstrations rather than slides.
- A reception product, not just a stage product. Mix-and-mingle mentalism gives organisations a way to make networking sessions and hospitality moments deliberately memorable rather than incidental.
- A client list that signals corporate-grade reliability. Deloitte, JP Morgan, Boston Scientific, Wells Fargo and Amazon have all booked Fox, alongside named work for PBS and the Jordan Royal Family.

Biography highlights

Biography

Most corporate events are built around content the audience will forget. The harder design problem is the moment in the room that people retell on Monday morning, and that still carries the message leadership wanted to land. Christophe Fox builds that moment as a product.

Fox is a corporate mentalist and emcee who works almost exclusively in the Fortune-100 event circuit. His headline set uses mind reading, suggestion and audience participation to put the audience inside the demonstration rather than in front of it. The same craft scales down to mix-and-mingle receptions and up to multi-session emcee work across sales kickoffs, anniversaries, product launches and client appreciation events.

His keynote, "Performing Under Pressure," runs a different lane. The content draws on his own transition from paralysing stage fright to full-time performer for clients including Deloitte, JP Morgan, Boston Scientific, Wells Fargo and Amazon. Mentalism demonstrations carry the message rather than slide decks, which is why the talk lands with audiences that have sat through a long agenda of conventional speakers.

The body of public work sits on television (CBS, ABC, Fox, MSNBC), a TEDx appearance, features in Modern Luxury Magazine and Yahoo News, and a social audience above one million followers with 100 million plus views. For a senior buyer, the relevant signal is reliability at scale: a performer who can hold the room at a Fortune-100 sales kickoff, brand the set to the event, and leave the audience with a shared moment that reinforces, rather than competes with, the leadership message.

Key speaking topics

- Corporate mentalism and interactive entertainment
- Event emcee and hosting
- Mix-and-mingle reception performance
- Performing under pressure
- Mindset and overcoming stage fright
- Customer experience as a designed moment
- Audience engagement at large internal events

Ideal for

- Heads of internal communications and event leads planning sales kickoffs, all-hands, anniversaries and client appreciation events.
- Chief marketing officers and brand teams designing customer events, product launches and hospitality experiences.
- Conference organisers booking an emcee who can hold a multi-session agenda and absorb load from internal hosts.

Audience outcomes

- A shared, retold moment from the event that ties back to the message leadership wanted to land.
- Higher energy and attention through the second half of the agenda when audiences typically fade.
- A reception or networking session that feels deliberate and branded, not incidental.

- For keynote bookings: a personal narrative about composure and stage fright that audiences relate to without it feeling like a lecture.

Christophe Fox's 2026 talks & topics

Performing Under Pressure

A keynote on composure, stage fright and the practice of holding focus when stakes are high, built around Fox's own transition from a paralysing fear of audiences to performing for Fortune-100 clients.

Key takeaways:

- A first-person account of the mechanics of stage fright and the practices that broke it.
- Live mentalism demonstrations used to make the content stick rather than illustrate a slide.
- Translation of performance-state habits into something a corporate audience can use the next week.

Headline Entertainment

A flagship mentalism and mind-reading set designed for corporate audiences, with set length, branding and framing built around the host event.

Key takeaways:

- A shared, memorable moment for the room that ties back to the event theme.
- Audience participation built into the set rather than added on.
- Customisable framing for sales kickoffs, anniversaries, product launches and client events.

Magical Service (Creating Magical Moments)

A customer experience talk that uses the principles behind live performance, attention, anticipation, the engineered surprise, as a frame for how organisations design customer interactions.

Key takeaways:

- The performance principles behind moments customers remember.
- How "magical service" translates to a frontline operating habit.
- Practical examples drawn from live demonstration rather than case-study slides.

Emcee Program

A full-event hosting role across multi-session agendas, with magic and mentalism used selectively to manage energy between speakers.

Key takeaways:

- A single, trained host carrying the agenda across the day.
- Energy management between sessions through interactive moments.
- Reduced load on internal speakers and event leads.

Mix and Mingle Entertainment

Close-up mentalism and interactive performance during receptions, networking and hospitality moments.

Key takeaways:

- Designed engagement during sessions that often default to small talk.
- Memorable touchpoints for clients, partners and senior guests.
- Scalable across cocktail receptions, dinners and hospitality suites.
