About Diane Hamilton

Leaders embrace the need to engage their employees, improve communication, and move the needle on innovation. What they often find challenging is how to do that. Dr. Diane Hamilton can provide the needed insight to help organizations reach their peak performance through understanding human behavior. She has inspired people throughout the world to assess their critical skills like curiosity, to get out of status-quo thinking. Diane's research into the inhibitors of curiosity is recognized as one of the most innovative ideas in the world. Her insights can help employees and leaders discover their true talents. Her goal is to ensure that employees and leaders are aligned to their passions. She demonstrates that through recognizing the inhibitors to our growth, we can create a path that leads to engagement, innovation, and productivity.

Her insights into areas of human behavior include improving curiosity, perception, emotional intelligence, and other critical soft skills to equip you and your organization with the tools for success. She recognizes that organizations hire people for their talents and fire them for their behaviors. If organizations can ignite that spark that improves those behaviors, it is a win/win for everyone. In a world where the only constant is change, there has never been a better time to get out of doing things the "way they have always been done." Diane can help you find innovative ways to reinvent your individual and organization's success.

Award-winning speaker, consultant, author, and educator Dr. Diane Hamilton is the thought leader in management, leadership, sales, and marketing. Her playful personality captivates the audiences, which is backed by a solid background of scholarly research. Diane is regularly hired by companies such as Forbes, Verizon, Novartis, and others to improve innovation and develop curiosity at the workplace. She introduces real-life examples and offers ready-to-be-used strategies to help organizations make a difference in and out of the office.
