Biography

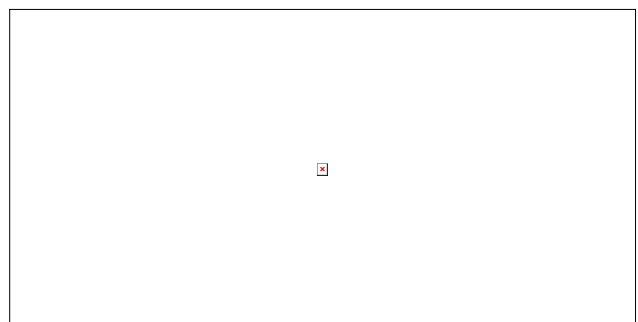

Paul Lewis is one of the UK's most recognised voices in personal finance and consumer money issues. As the presenter of BBC Radio 4's Money Box and Money Box Live, he has built a reputation for rigorous, independent analysis of pensions, taxation, scams, fraud and the financial services sector.

A freelance financial journalist, he contributes to national publications including Saga Magazine and Money Marketing, providing clear insight into the practical realities facing consumers and institutions alike. His work bridges the gap between complex financial regulation and real-world impact, making him a trusted commentator for both public and professional audiences.

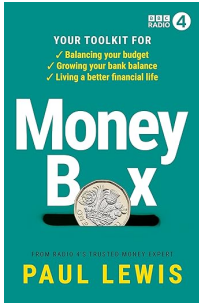

Paul is also the author of multiple personal finance books, including Money Box, Pay Less Tax, Beat the Banks, and Money Magic. His writing and broadcasting have been recognised with major industry awards, including Headlinemoney Broadcast Journalist of the Year and Consumer Pension and Investment Journalist of the Year.

For government bodies, regulators, financial services organisations and senior leadership teams, Paul brings authoritative perspective on how policy, markets and financial products affect individuals and communities. His experience at the forefront of consumer finance journalism ensures audiences receive balanced, evidence-based insight grounded in decades of frontline reporting.
