Christian Kromme's Background

Christian Kromme is an author, technology entrepreneur, futurist and innovation speaker. He is the author of the amazon best seller book “Humanification – Go Digital, Stay Human”. His book helps people and companies to take advantage of new technology, turning a perceived threat into a new challenge.

In 2002, Christian founded his own agency – Artificial Industry which provides global brands with disruptive ideas and incubator solutions. He sold his agency in 2014 to enable him to focus his time on giving presentations and workshops about disruptive innovation and exponential technologies.

As a speaker, Christian takes his audience on a journey of discovery about the exponentially changing world that we live in, where increasing disruptive technology empowers the consumer. He challenges organisations to think and act like a surfer helping to transform disruptive threats into disruptive opportunities.

He is in constant demand and speaks at various events for leading organisations and companies including KPN, Akzo Nobel, HALMA, TEDx, Randstad and Financial Times. Christian can be booked as a speaker for master classes, workshops, lectures and inspirational sessions, where he will share insight on the impact of disruptive and exponential technologies in our daily lives.
