

Romesh Ranganathan

Award-winning stand-up comedian, writer and actor

Romesh Ranganathan is a British stand-up comedian and actor who has appeared on Mock the Week, Holby City, Soccer AM, Russell Howard's Good News, Sweat the Small Stuff and Virtually Famous.

Romesh's biography

Romesh Ranganathan's background

Romesh first appeared on the comedy circuit in 2010, performing in venues across the UK. With his cutting one-liners, Romesh quickly gained a following and became a finalist in a number of comedy competitions, including the Latitude New Act Final 2010 & So You Think You're Funny?

His impact on the comedy circuit has seen him quickly make a name for himself with his critically acclaimed Edinburgh Festival show, 'Rom Wasn't Built In A Day' being nominated for the prestigious Edinburgh Fosters Best Show Award in August 2014. This was only 12 months after his festival debut 'Rom-Com' being nominated for the coveted 'Best Newcomer Award 2013'.

His awards include Semi Finalist Laughing Horse New Act of The Year 2010, Runner Up Amused Moose Laugh Off 2010, Finalist So You Think You're Funny 2010 and Finalist Latitude New Act of The Year 2010. However, Romesh has come a long way since winning the 'Leicester Mercury New Act Award 2013'. These achievements culminated in his debut appearance on BBC2's 'Mock The Week', BBC1's 'Live At The Apollo', ITV1's 'Sunday Night At The Palladium', BBC3's 'Russell Howard's Good News', 'Edinburgh Comedy Fest Live 2013', a regular slot on Channel 4's weekly topical show 'Stand Up For The Week', hosting two series of BBC Radio 4 Extra's 'Newsjack' as well as appearances on BBC Radio 4's 'News Quiz' and the long-running and beloved 'The Now Show'.

From playing comedy clubs all over the country Romesh's profile has grown as has the respect from his peers which has resulted in him writing for numerous shows and supporting the likes of Seann Walsh, Bill Burr, Paul Chowdhry and one of his comedy heroes, Ricky Gervais.

Romesh is the perfect entertainment for corporate and private events, whether it's delivering a witty and razor sharp after dinner comedy set or hosting your gala awards dinner.

